Let's Talk New Builds

Is building your dream home an item on your bucket list? Have you been curious about building a home but not sure where to start? Lange Real Estate is excited to partner with other industry experts to offer a class for those wanting to learn more about the building and financing process for new construction homes.

Join us for a 2 hour presentation including an open Q&A and learn from industry leading professionals on how to prepare and what to expect when building a home in today's market.

This class will feature a real estate agent who specializes in new construction homes as well as a lender experienced in the various new construction financing options.

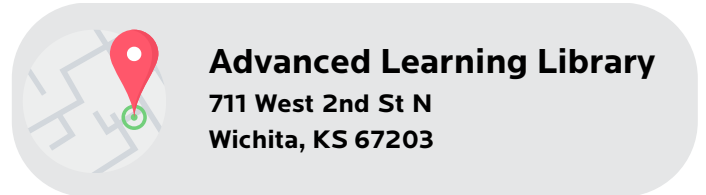

This is the perfect opportunity to learn about the home building process and have your questions answered before construction begins.

RSVP today to reserve your spot for this free class.

We'll be providing snacks and refreshments to keep you fueled and focused. If you can't attend in person, we've got you covered with virtual options available.
